What is ADAMH?

- The Alcohol, Drug and Mental Health Board of Franklin County (ADAMH) is a levy agency that funds mental health and addiction services through a network of more than 50 community-based, non-profit agencies.
- The ADAMH network serves as the behavioral health safety net for the community, ensuring that quality addiction and mental health services are accessible to all Franklin County residents, regardless of insurance status or ability to pay.

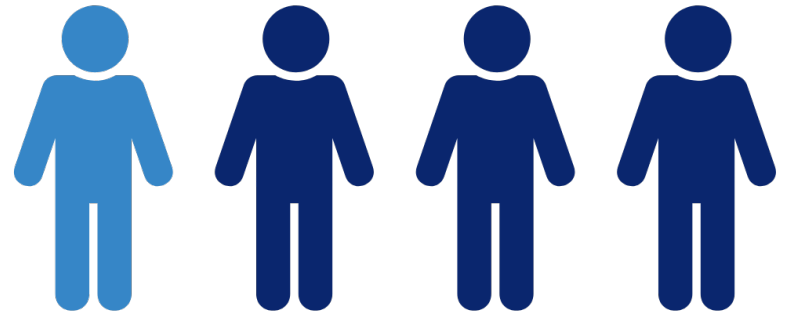

Value of the ADAMH Levy

- Stable local funding of network services
- Fully operationalize Franklin County Crisis Care Center
- Accountability for reliable mental health and addiction care when needed

Increasing Needs

- Medicaid, state and federal funding uncertainty
- Prevalence – one in four Franklin County adults experience mental illness each year
- Suicide rate increasing, particularly for teens, older adults and males
- Overdose rates still at historic highs
- Population growth

Modest Investment

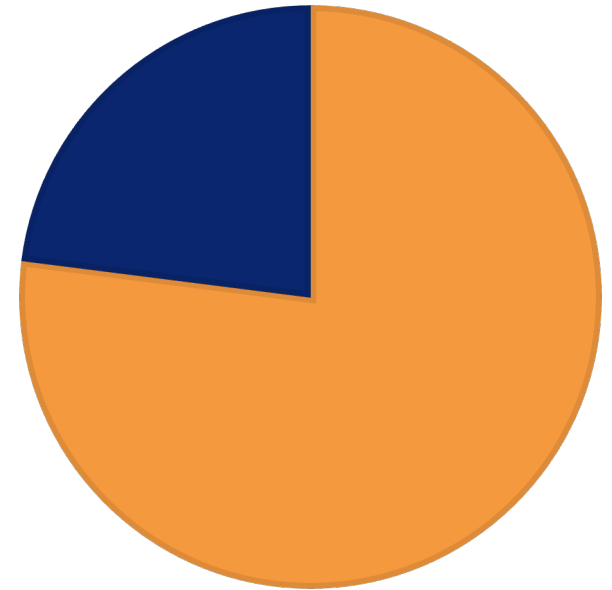

The increased millage amount is relatively modest as a proportion of collected property tax in Franklin County, but the impact is great.

	Monthly cost to property owner
Increased millage (0.5) per $100,000 home value	+$1.46
Total millage (2.85 renewal + 0.5 increase) per $100,000 home value	$5.74

Supporting Critical Care

Without the levy, 77% of ADAMH funding for programs addressing suicide prevention, addiction and access to mental health services will be lost.

Major Impact by the Numbers

- ✓ 250 hotline calls per day (about 90,000/ year) received on 9-8-8 and mental health crisis hotlines for youth and adults
- ✓ 50+ neighborhood agencies funded every year to deliver mental health and addiction services in every Franklin County zip code serving about 100,000 persons
- ✓ 16 county school districts receiving prevention and intervention services
- ✓ 6 systems of mental health care: Crisis, Prevention, Treatment, Recovery, Housing and Family Supports
- ✓ 5 mobile crisis teams working alongside law enforcement
- ✓ 1 comprehensive crisis care center newly constructed in Franklinton
